Li'l Shadd's father is a busy pioneer doctor. When Dr. Shadd is called to see a patient on Li'l Shadd's birthday, the young boy struggles to understand why helping people is more important than his birthday party.

There's only one way to find out: join his father on the long horse-and-wagon journey to help Nīkānīsiw's family!

Dr. Alfred Schmitz Shadd (1870-1915), an early prairie pioneer, made a tremendous contribution to the development of the Province of Saskatchewan. In commemoration of this African-Canadian hero, the Saskatchewan African Canadian Heritage Museum (SACHM) is pleased to present this centennial legacy project in celebration of Saskatchewan's shared history and multicultural heritage.

Ujima is a Swahili expression for building and maintaining a community together, making our brothers' and sisters' problems our problems, and solving them together.
